On motion of Senator Steele, the following is to be spread upon the pages of the Senate Journal

Representative Dana Love: February 13, 2003

In 1996 the Utah State Centennial Commission provided us with a grant to produce the program “Utah...This is the Place.” Every school in the state received a free copy which they used to celebrate the state’s 100th birthday. In as much as the state commissioned this production, we have never received royalties that would come from be authors of this work.

We feel the state song should belong to everyone in the state. Therefore, if “Utah...This is the Place” becomes the state song, we relinquish all rights as copyright holders to the citizens of Utah for public domain use. This will insure that everyone can use and enjoy the state song without copyright restrictions.

Gary Francis and Sam Francis
